

How Star Trek Voyager became the clue to Hell and more

Friday October 13, 2006

Joel Akin

I'll get to the title of this story in a bit. First I wanted to mention that the past two nights were spent in the frosty woods of the Kananaski's region somewhere between Millarville and Bragg Creek. It was a struggle to find a place to camp for free. I tried Gooseberry but they were in the process of rehabilitating it. But while on the phone with Dad a park ranger stops by and gives me directions to a place off McClain Creek road. It worked out the camp site I chose wasn't the best shape but I spent some time cleaning it up and setting up a fire, my tent, tarp over it and so on. All went well and I roasted some hot dogs with a roasting fork tied to a pole I happened to have in my truck.

During the night I woke up to answer nature's call and I must admit I gasped for wonder and awe. The Big Dipper was prominent in the West and overhead the Milky Way was like a swathe of infinite stars that make up our galaxy. I cried out to God in praise for it has been so many years since I've seen the stars so clearly. I've camped out on the prairie before searching for the perfect night sky not seen since my youth in Michigan and once in the 80's in the Philippines. Wondrous beauty beyond immortal ken or eye.

Then this morning just before Six AM I was standing facing West but staring pretty much directly overhead. There were scattered clouds and a half moon somewhere around. But I saw a series of satellite type lights directly overhead only they didn't act like Satellites or airplane lights. In the illustration above I am pointing out the direction the Triangular object was traveling. A South East direction directly along the outer edge of the Cassiopeia 'w'. The lower part of the triangle seemed to be composed of a 'whisker' that slowed down, deviated, turned in circles and seemed altogether skittish. Then it would realign itself with the triangular shape and vanished behind the clouds. Admittedly it is my first real UFO or UFO's depending on which way you look at it.

Anyway I got back this afternoon. Showered to clear up the smoke and dirt of two nights of camping and burning wood. I turned on to the Space Channel to watch Star Trek Voyager. In this episode Chakotay is on a mission to check out one of two possible directions for the ship to head home. He is stranded on a planet with a divided collective of x-borg's who are at war with each other. He is rescued by a former borg woman from Texas and falls in love with her before being rescued by Voyager with Captain Janeway.

It was while watching this that I felt lead by God to do a little research. I'm on a mission, if you will, to find knowledge on the Abyss as mentioned in Revelations. As I search God reveals clues to me based on events that are happening in my life right now. The past few years have been fascinating for me but as the clues come together.... Well, lets just say that my life is very interesting spiritually right now.

I'll give you a few second run down. When Jesus died he went down to Hell and the Grave. Now as you know Abraham said of the people in hell that there was a gap between them which could not be bridged. That gap we'll call the Abyss. Somehow Jesus became the gap because he had to take on Sin. Sin wasn't in Paradise as some may think. This was the place meant to be for those who were righteous. Now I know you could raise a stink here and say that they were stung by death and under the power of the law, sin entered in and they could not escape. So if that is true they had to be under the authority either of death or sin. Now it is possible that Death may have been a fallen angel or a fallen man who had sin in his heart. But however it worked Jesus had to bridge that gap.

Now think of Hell this way. Hell was created for the Devil and his angels. Lets suppose for a minute that when we say created that it was created at the moment of creation. Why? Though I know the story better each day I don't want to give it away as yet. Lets just say that there was a gap. So lets say that it was a gap between the works of darkness and the works of light. The works of darkness became the dark night of the soul or the winter months. We'll call that Janus from which we get the Month January. Janus is the first of the Months and lets say he represents the head, the Captain of the dark door that leads to hell. Six months of the year he is in charge until June 30th.

Now at Midnight of June 30th the light side begins. We'll call him Jason, kind of a reverse on Janus. Its fun to play with words and its even more fun to show you how God works in prophetic history.

Janus is the Roman god of gates and doors (ianua), beginnings and endings, and hence represented with a double-faced head, each looking in opposite directions. In his right hand is a key. Now, we know that Jesus said of himself "Behold, I stand at the door and knock..." Pictures of him show him standing there but there is no keyhole to the door.

Now these are all clues. So hang on to your hat cause God indeed works in mysterious ways. Now if Janus is the dark god who represents one who is 'two faced' then how does this fit in with our story? Think of Ja as being part of Gods first name. But nus is different. It is like the French term nous for we or us. So in a way it seems as if Satan took nous (noose-means end of the line)to mean we as in trying to make himself God or as a game arose surrounding that name it became Fench also. Oui Ja or Ja nous.. But God saw that his power was limited or seasonal. So he became the cold months.

I have a poem I wrote years ago and in it is a line "After the night of winter comes the warmth of Summertime." And God gave me a prophecy several years ago that he was going to find me a place where the Sun shines upon me in the morning. I've been living here in Alberta since 1981 and it is never really summer until July. And normally we can expect at least one month to be consistent in warmth and heat. That is July. So how does this fit in? Think of this as I quote something all of you have seen but none of you have figured out. January, February March, April, May, June. So far so good. Doesn't mean much does it. So lets try this.

J uly August September October November If you spell out those 5 months, the beginning of each letter it spells out the name JASON. Now if you study the name it means 'the cure'.

Now some of you might want to do your own research on this. Feel free.

Now getting back to Star Trek Voyager and Captain Janeway. Depending on how you break the name apart. It has meaning on all levels. First is Jan or Jane. It is a Hebrew word meaning "God is gracious." Second is way. Jesus said of himself "I am the way, the truth and the light. No man cometh unto the father but by me." That simply means that somehow Jesus became the doorway for us as mankind.

Now lets look again at the name Janeway because we are not finished. If we look at it backward we find even more amazing clues. First lets take the word Naj. It was first used of Christians by the Essenes, the ones who wrote the dead sea scrolls. Some believe it means the Silent ones. Other languages refer to it as the women or the breast of the female. But if we tear it down to its truest meaning then we get into some spooky things. n'aj or n age becomes almost a synonym for New age. The end of the n'aj or the night gives way to the morning sun or light. So that which we saw in Janus being the cold dark months now gives way to a new age. A n aj or nous age.

Now if Satan tried to take the name new aj or nus ag or new age and make it his own then that first six months would be dark, cold, 'end of the line' as in Terminus. Or take Terra (Ter) or Earth and bring it to a cold end. A cold end would be a total destruction of Earth as we know it. So the cold end, the cold minus, the bitter end to one of Gods creations. His footstool. So we know that this is, was the plan. To bring in a new age by taking July and throwing it out and repeating the cold age by making it the nous aj or Ja Nus Its interesting to note that January is not supposed to be the first month but according to the ancient Romans the 11th month. So if Janus replaced Jason then Satan's true plan was to exterminate mankind. Somehow God had to bring an end to the 11 month plan of Janus and make sure the two faced, dead end became first on the courts agenda. Thus Janus went from number 11 to number one. Perhaps there are keys if we think of the Ace up the sleeve.

So what is so special about December? How about this. Jesus was born at what some call the Winter Solstice. Now you won't find many Christians who will stand by December 25th as being the date of Christ's birth. But lets just say that it was. And lets say that God wanted us to remember his birth in the 12th month of the year. Maybe December was meant to represent a totally new month. A way of separating the 11 months. A way for the Son to shine so that He would become the way, the truth and the life. But we run into some strange mysteries. December is not supposed to be the 12th month. Its supposed to be the 10th month. Dec means ten but it also is a word that goes into multiple meanings in different languages. Lets cover just the briefest of these as they are all amazing. Somehow God had to make that which was the tenth become the 12th month. He had to change the course of history to make it so. Now Dec ember is also known as Dis Embar. Dis embar can be seen several ways. First it is short for Disembark. Disembark would be one of those mythological wonders used by Death in crossing the River Styx. Bark could be seen as the bark from the Tree of Knowledge of good and evil and removing the bark to make away across the river (time) would make sense. Another way to see it is to know that Dis was another ancient wonder which referred to those thing under. Now if Dis means under ember then ember would refer to the fires of hell. Hell would have been created for the Devil and his angels but Christ had to take authority over Hell and the Grave thus going under it and creating a cornerstone. If Satan and the Devils works were based on Time and Death then we have two common themes throughout. Sand and wood or hay, wood and stubble. Thus there needed to be a sure foundation created which would enable God to take authority over Hell and the Grave. This new foundation was based on Jesus being the cornerstone for Death and Time and the Devil and his angels plus others who might have fallen into the abyss.

Now we could go into October for it is the tenth month in place of December. So there is something strange here also for October can best be described as the Yoke that grew underground or the number 8. (think octopus and think tuber) 8 roots? Whatever the meaning of October it fell into the position of the tenth month. Perhaps in the future there may only be ten months in the year and two of those months will be removed.

Now going back to Captain Janeway. We haven't quite finished with the prophetic name. Janeway or yawenaj is how it is spelled backwards. Lets take it apart just a little more.

Y-From the Greek meaning in the form of three limbs. The three limbs represent the sacred triad formed from the Duad spreading out from the monad. In this case I think it has both a positive meaning as in a place of beginnings. Like the turnstiles in a railroad yard where what we'll call the Gospel Train is ready to roll from the station. It can also be seen as Truth. Truth is our conscience and we have to chose between one of two pathways.

Ya or Yaw-A deviation from ones course. What a ship does when it moves away from the direct line. In the Star Trek Voyager Episode the ship was forced to chose between one of two different pathways. Not knowing which was the best course the Captain and main crew went down one road and Commander Chakotay in another. On one path was waiting the Borg, a ship of the dead. On the other the survivors of the Borg ship but still bound by a collective agreement. Those survivors were at war with each other. Like Hell and the Grave. At the end they found a way to blow up the Borg ship which represented Hell to all Species who fell under its snare.

As I did research on these things I felt like the Lord spoke to me and tell me to add an E to Yaw. So I went back to the computer and looked for the word Yawe which was the last part of Janeway. In several places I found that it meant a gulf or abyss. We get the word yawn which leads to sleep from this word. It is the dead who sleep and it is the Yawe or chasm which separates Hell and the Grave. But Jesus became the cornerstone so that there might be a new founding, a new season, a new age, a new time, a new life for those trapped in the Yawe or sleep.

But we are not finished as yet for we have to go from the yawn to the dawn. The beginning of the new day. As mentioned before Janeway had to find a path between one of two choices. Down one way was the Borg Cube, dead in space. Destroyed by a great unknown factor. The Borg represented their mortal enemy. In a way it was like Sin. It represented an end, a chasm, a gulf between God and man. God had to find a way to bridge the gulf. He had to find a new way. A new face. A new man. Thus entered the Yahweh. The Yawe Way. The Yawn way. The awakener from death. The awakener to a new life.

Jesus entered into the Grave. He entered into Hell. He took authority over the mortal enemy. He took the Sea Son. The man who spit out Salt who we might call Sin. Think of Sin as the sailor who lost his way. He became as Janus. A man who was cursed and carried that curse to mankind. We became anemic. We lost our strength. We were told there was only one door but that door was the broad way. It lead to the Cinder Field of ashes. It broke apart Gods creation into two mirrored parts. Gods time and Sin time. Sin stole the salt away from Time so Time lost his sight. This meant Satan, the Devil, the liar and father of lies took on that authority and lead man down the wrong path.

Jesus provided a way out of Hell and the Grave by becoming the new doorkeeper. But we were given a choice and everyone of us had to decide if we chose the old gods with their lies and filth or looked for a new season or a new Captain of eternity. He made that foundation for us so that we would have a stepping stone out of a place that had no way out. He became the only way out for us who through God, became THE WAY.

So the next time you are faced with two choices pray and ask God "What is the best path." It may be that Time will show you some things. It may also be that the clues are there waiting for us if we have eyes to see and ears to hear. I can't wait for the next episode on Gods channel to exploration.