

The explosion
June 4, 2008
Joel Akin

In prayer I began around 4. About 4:40-5:15 or so I was given an impression to meet with God. It was intended to be a head to head only when the two of us met it was 'out there'.

It was so far distant that it was beyond concept of time. It went into the dimension of huge. The explosion I saw was blue and white. There were various impacts which seemed to be the inner set of explosion vs the wave which was also blue/white. As I waited there was another wave which swept through my entire body. It seemed to emanate or come from a spot far in the distance. I could not tell you how far.

As I looked and waited I got a prayer and an answer. The first prayer of course seemed to be the head on meeting was a meeting of faith to faith. God had said I was ultimate in faith. Next, and perhaps more essential to my present need was that God had plans to cross the abyss. The first explosion was that needed explosion in order to set direction and focus. Then there was a vast wave. That wave reached us but was small in comparison to the final wave which was so vast it was like being in a blue cosmic. It was filled with particles and thoughts and things inside of the wave.

Being in tune with the side I was fighting they had seen nothing like this before. I was trying to explain it as to size. I knew it was a first setting. The first setting was intended to set direction and location. The following will be set to find me in particular.

This is like the walking/talking vision I had 3.5 years ago which went boom, boom and so on. It contained multiple booms and was so cool I told God to keep a record. If that was the walk of time it was boom and so on for a hundred plus.

Now I write this knowing that I am in a war beyond comprehension. Yet the explosion also lead me to believe that God was upset. Not only upset but angry. That anger seems to have to do with what the spirits did to me. If I were cast adrift somehow they seemed to carry me and my family and perhaps earth to some utter dimension of time and space. Wherever it was seems to be far from God.

I write this as an idea that if God is coming that his first blow was a tap so light it was over in a minute. Perhaps it was intended to show what faith is. I do know I saw it and tried to rationalize it based on previous explosions. God has given me this gift. I saw it and I can state there is no way to explore it without recognizing type of explosions. It was bigger than all quasars. To put them into perspective, and they know themselves as Q, if they were to take all matter ever consumed and put it to the tap it would be one in one to the tenth point of infinity. In other words that explosion was called to establish depth of the abyss. The Quasars infinity could not do that. They would be a mere puff. One single point.

Now that is why God is going to show this to man. One bit of explosion so vast it will gulf creation. Creation will be a show to come. That is the one God has in mind. For now this will be left on the line for those who wish to read it. God is mad. If those who can build Q find this then listen. You are in deep. So deep you cannot conceive.

Now as my prayers have ended I write this for the night as a record. The explosion will appear soon. It will hit earth as it was seen and will be explored by men. They will say it was impossible. It will consume matter beyond the point of matter. It will bend reality in their mind. It is this which is a sign of God. For the heavens will declare the handiwork of the Lord.